France reviewing operation

Concorde's flying days hang in balance

PARIS, Aug. 28 (AFP) - The commercial operation of the Franco-British Con-corde supersonie airliner "is being studied bearing in mind its heavy losses", a source close to the Elysee Palace said here Friday. This followed a report in the conservative Figuro newspaper here Friday quoting new Socialist President Francois Mitterrand as saying in an interview that regretably, it will be necessary to end the plane's commercial use. This was despite its remarkable technological success, the president said. Meanwhile, the Le Monde paper here reported that the plane's future might be raised when Mitterrand and Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher bold a summit meeting Sept. 10 and 11. The paper reported that the French government has apparently compromised to the idea of abandoning commercial flights by the 14 aircraft in service solely with British Airways and Air France. The source close to the Elysee said Friday: "A solution must be found to this situation which will be discussed with English authorioes." The source said the matter could be raised in coming weeks, particularly at the Franco-British talks in Sep-

Air France has stressed that it has always operated Concorde to the best of its ability in line with directives from the authorioes. The state meets a large part of the plane's losses which totalled $50 million for France

Under a contract signed in January for 1981 to 1983, the state will meet almost all the losses compared with its earlier responsibility for 70 percent of the deficit. The plane's future has been hit by escalating fuel costs since the first designs were made in 1962. The program cost $6,000 million but oone of the aircraft has been sold outside Bridan and France.

The plane first flew for Air France in 1976, but it was not allowed to land in the United States until November 1977 after a long legal battle. The high cost of tiekets means that the plane often takes off with many empty seats.

North Korea accuses U.S. of air violation

TOKYO, Aug. 28 (Agencies) — North Korea accused the United States Friday of violating its territory with the flight of an SR-71 reconnaisance plane but denied that it fired a missile at the high-flying U.S. jet.

The Korean central oews agency said the Pentagon's claim that the aircraft had been fired oo while flying a international air space two days ago was "groundlessly slandering" North Korea. "This is one more deliberate fabrication cooked up by the U.S. imperialist aggressors to neighteo tension and find a pretext for unleashing a new war in Korea, and a rave provocation against our republic," it

U.S. defense officials said in Washington earlier they had confirmed that a missile was fired at the SR-71, but missed and exploded without damage to the top-secret, high-altitude plane. KCNA said that "while constantly perpetrating espionage acts against the northern half of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the U.S. imperialist aggressors fabricated a lie to slander us and veil their criminal mature."

to translate plans into action

The government also has to agree on the exact scope of its plans to nationalize 11 major companies and most private banks in time for the cabinet to approve a draft law at its Sept. 16 meeting. The socialist-dominated parliament could then debate and pass the controversial nationalization bill in October.

When Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy outlined the nationalization plans to parliament last mooth, he said industrial groups would be nationalized in the autumn. But government sources said subsequent discussion in a long series of meetings between ministers has shown that three of the groups in which foreign companies bold an important or majority stake cannot be oationalized immediately.

Delicate negociations on compensation and other terms of the state takeover will have to be conducted over these three while the other eight domestic French groups are included in next month's draft law, the sources said. The three companies are the Computer Concern CII-Honeywell Bull, of which the U.S. company Honeywell holds 47 percent, ITT-France, controlled by the U.S. electronics giant ITT, and the pharmaceuocals firm Roussel in which the West German chemical company Hoechst has a majority interest.

JEDDAH, Aug. 28 — The Commercial
Center at the United States embassy reported that U.S. commercial efforts in promotional trade exhibitions held throughout 1980 exceeded their objectives and provided a push for sales of U.S. products.

As a result of the missions, a cooperative relationship has been firmly established in support of U.S.-Saudi Arabian trade, a commercial center report concluded.

The exhibitions include the Buildind Products Trade Mission, Audio, Visual Educational Aids Trade Mission, Overseas Automotive Club IOGA Trade Mission, Middle East Construction Exhibition, Medical tricity Exhibition, USDA Food Sales Team and the Water Resources Equipment Trade

The Building Products Trade Mission, held in Dhahran and Jeddah, produced immediate sales of $4.3 million and projected sales of $10.6 million; the Audio-Visual Educational Aids Trade Mission, held in Jeddah, Riyadh and Dhahran, had immediate sales of $22 million and projected sales of $44 million in fiscal year 1980; the Overseas Automotive Club IOGA Trade Mission, visiting Jeddah, Riyadh and Dbahran, had immediate sales of $2.2 million and projected sales of $8 million; during the Middle East Construction Exhibi-

At the Medical "Health Care in the 80's" exhibition. U.S. firms had $1.9 million in immediate sales and $257 million in proiected sales; the Middle East Electricity Exhibition provided $1.8 million in immediate sales and $32 million in projected sales; when the USDA Food Sales team came to Jeddah Riyadh and Dhahran, it netted $20,000 in immediate sales and $40 million in projected sales; during the Water Resources Equipment Trade Mission in Jeddah, Riyadh and Dhahran, U.S. companies brought in $60,000 in immediate sales and $36.5 million in projected sales.

With Saudi Arabian imports expected to grow by 20 percent in 1982 to $50 billion, the U.S. share of the market will be just under 20 percent or $9 billion — confirming Saudi Arabia's position as the largest American market in the Middle East, according to U.S. Commercial Center reports. The report says that U.S. suppliers face increasingly stiff competition from European and Asian coimtries, and much tougher contract terms from Saudi Arabian tendering agencies.

However, the United States sees wider trade opportunities in the attention being shown to the productive sectors in the King-dom, and the commercial center will focus on several methods in which to offer assistance to U.S. businesses. These include carrying out additional promotional events in 1982. providing assistance to new firms wishing to enter into joint ventures with Saudi Arabian companies, provide support and promotion for foreign buyers in U.S. trade shows and expanding commercial programs with the

APRICORP's income soars to SR133 million

ALKHOBAR, Aug. 28 (SPA) — The Arab Petroleum Investment Corporation announced Friday a net profit of SR108.5 million for the 1980 fiscal year. APRICORP's gross income reached SR133.3 million through its success in joint Arab investment projects, according to its annual report released Friday.

The Corporation's financing, management and commitments for loans in favor of petroleum projects in several Arab countries amounted to $370 million, including the increase of its participation in capitals of some petroleum projects last year, the report.

APRICORP is a joint corporation formed by member states of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) - Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Iraq, Libya, Qatar, Kuwait, Syria and the United Arab Emirates.

Detailing the projects which APRICORP financed in 1980, the report mentioned the Bahrain refinery which was granted a $300 million loan commitment to expand, improve and increase production.

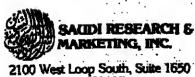

The corporation has contributed 85 percent of a urea fertilizer project in Somalia which amounted to $60 million. The project incorporates two plants, a 90-too daily production plant for amonia and a 150-ton plant for urea. The project, which aims at meeting the local market demand for chemical fertilizers in Somalia, is expected to come into operation by 1983. It will provide a vital product for local consumption easing pressure on the country's balance of payments, the report

Other joint Arab projects financed by the corporation include a $10 million loan to the Arab Wells Digging and Maintenance Company to help it implement its program in Arab countries APRICORP also has undertaken an economic and technical feasibility study about a joint Arab engineering consultancy project. The project was decided to be established under the name of the Arab Engineering Consultancy Company and to be based in the United Arab Emirates. APRICORP contributed 11 percent of the new company's $20 million capital.

Projects under consideration include a chemicals cleaning project in Iraq with a capital of $240 million. Basic designing, determination of production methods and licensing of techniques for the project have been com-

APRICORP is currently making a detailed economic and technical feasibility study for a hibricant oil plant in Yanbu. The project will have a 200,000 annual capacity during its first phase with the intention of meeting the Arab market's demand for lube oil.

APRICORP has decided to establish a synthetic rubber and a carbon black projects in Libya, for which executive plans and final designs are underway.

Preliminary studies undergone jointly with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and the Arab Industrial Development Organization about the two projects revealed the existence of a reasonable market for synthetic rubber and carbon black in the Arab world.

The corporation also has undertaken the necessary procedures to study and establish a joint Arab project for producing insecticides, in cooperation with the Arab Economic and Social Development Fund and the Arab Medicine Industries Company. Technical and economic feasibility studies are already underway for the implementation of project.

Kayyal will hold talks with his host on boosting bilateral cooperation in the field of communications, mainly in the telephone sector. He will also discuss a wireless project for the management and control of wireless JEDDAH - More than SR200 million have been allocated for Jeddah Municipality projects, Mayor Muhammad Said Farsi has said recently after a meeting of the Higher Coordination Committee, which he chaired. The amount includes SR40 million for Jeddah's fish market and new projects for the Corniche, the northern creek and other areas, according to local reports.

JEDDAH - An anonymous person has offered to cover all the expenses of a surgery on a female patient in need of a kidney transplant at King Faisal Specialist Hospital in Riyadh. Al-Medina which published an appeal a few days ago, for helping the patient announced recently that the benefactor also proposed to pay for the air trip and all the expenses involved for the patient and persons accompanying her. He would also spend on frequencies in the Kingdom. The project is of major importance to Saudi Arabia, because it has only limited facility in the wireless frequencies at present. The P.T.T. minister will be accompanied by Fuad Abu Mansour, assistant undersecretary for operation and maintenance; Rubaie Dahlan, director general of longdistance communications; and Abdul Mohsen Abu Shukhaidam, director of legal department.

HASA (SPA) - Prince Muhammad ibo Fahd Al-Jiluwi, governor of Hasa, honored Thursday the final ceremony of Hofuf Islamic Studies and Sharia College's summer center. The ceremony marked the end of the center's activity which lasted 60 days and in which 400 students from various educational levels took part. Prizes and gifts were distributed to the participant students.

ABHA (SPA) - Students participating in Dhamad's summer center are on a four-day trip in the Asir Region during which they will get acquainted to the area's historic features. The students from Dhamad center numbering 145 are part of the 1,000 students who enrolled in Jizan's six summer centers.

Bahes tourist village opened

ABHA, Aug. 28 (SPA) — Governor of Asir region Prince Khaled Al-Faisal dedicated the Bahes tourist village project — the first of its kind in Saudi Arabia - near here

Speaking on the occasion, Prince Khaled stressed the need for the establishment of such projects and urged the capitalists to invest in similar projects in the country, rather than investing their capitals abroad.

He also called on the Saudi Hotels and Resort Areas Company to implement some of its projects in Asir and similar areas, and further asked the Saudi Arabian Public Transport Company (SAPTCO) to include Asir and other areas in its service operations.

Later, the governor told a gathering of journalists that the state's concern for Asir region will turn it into a tourist resort of the first order not only for the citizens but for the peoples of the whole Gulf regioo. He reaffirmed that the state will not spare any effort in supporting the projects submitted by local investors, and added that the project of a tourist village in Sodah area is currently underway and is expected to be completed

Prince Khaled said that his governorate has recently set up a department for the development of tourism, whose task will be to coordinate efforts of various circles interested in summer resorts. He added that an office has been opened for the development and coordination of services in the area.

The governor denied that concentration on summer resort projects would adversely. affect the agriculture in the region. He also referred to the efforts being made by the Ministry of Communications to link Asir to the rest of the country through a network of roads. Recently, a contract has been let for Riyadh/Asir highway, after allocating necessary funds for the project in the current year's budget, he said.

On the other hand, Prince Khaled said that the King Faisal Welfare Society is currently implementing a commercial markets project in Abha at a cost of nearly SR25 million.

The openiog ceremony was attended by Sheikh Ibrahim ibn Ibrahim, governor of Baha region, and top officials of the area. The Bahes tourist project includes 14 housing units, gardens, luna parks and different kinds of restaurants and cafes.

Israel orders return call for world of aid to West Bank

TEL AVIV, Aug. 28 (Agencies) — The Israeli military government has ordered Palestinian institutions in the occupied West Bank to return all funds received from Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization, Israel Radio reported Thursday.

It said the Israeli authorities ordered a bus cooperative in Bir Zeit, north of Jerusalem, to return $30,000 it received from the joint PLO-Jordanian Committee which oversees the transfer of funds to the West Bank.

The bus company was told to return the funds and to show the military authorities a receipt, the report said.

Israel recently stepped up its harassment of Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip as they have refused to negotiate with the Israelis on Palestinian self-rule in the occupied territories.

Bethlehem mayor Elias Freij told the Associated Press by that he learned of the timian funds would seriously curtail his municipality's services. "Fifty percent of our dayto-day budget and 100 percent of our development budget is covered by Palestinian funds", he said.

Freij said Bethlehem received $12,000 from the military government last year to supplement local tax revenues and another$1 million from the joint committee. "We bring funds in as we need them," he said, "but very soon the need will arise for more. If the order is strictly applied, it will paralyze our municipal services". Freij said. He did not know if any other West Bank institutions had been ordered to return funds to Jordan.

Hebron Mayor Mutafa Natshe claimed the cutoff would affect construction of a sixth school, a sewerage project and a road widen-ing project in his town of 50,000 south of

Haig said attending autonomy talks

TEL AVIV, Aug. 28 (R) — United States Secretary of State Alexander Haig might attend next month's resumed Egyptian-Israeli talks on Palestinian autonomy in person, reports in two newspapers said here Friday. Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin said Thursday night that it took him and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "exactly 30 seconds' to agree on a resumption of talks. Israeli Defence Minister Yitzhak Shamir handed over an invitation for Washington to name its representatives to the talks to the U.S. Ambassador in Israel, Samuel Lewis. Washington correspondents of The Jerusalem Post, Haaretz and Al Hamishmatr wrote Friday that the U.S.

administration had been caught short by the speed with which the two countries reached

However, Maariv discounted reports in The Jerusalem Post and Hamishmair that Haig might come to the talks. Quoting sources close to Haig's office, it said the United Nations was "irritated" by the agreement being reached without the U.S. being consulted or notified.

The Jerusalem Post said the problems between Israel and Egypt were too great for immediate solutions, while Haeretz dismissed results announced so far of the 11th Israeli-Egyptian summit in Alexandria as "administrative."

Begin's ruling partners stone police

TEL AVIV, Aug. 28 (AFP) - Two police bomb squad experts were injured and a special explosives-defusing vehicle was put out of service Thursday night by a hail of rocks thrown by ultra-orthodox Jewish protestors, police said Friday.

The vehicle, which was equipped with a device that defuses bombs from a distance, was one of only two here. The ultra-orthodox attack could seriously hamper police bomb demolition efforts in the city, police said.

The ultra-orthodox groups, partners in Begin's fragile coalitinn, clashes with police over an archaeological dig that they said could disturb an ancient grave site, set upon the truck when it passed through their neigh-

In another development, observers noted an increase in the number of letters to newspapers demanding resistance to growing "religious obscurantism" in the country.

Russia repeats M.E. conference

MOSCOW, Aug. 28 (R) — The Soviet Union has said the Israeli-Egyptian summit in Alexandria had been a failure and repeated its call for an international conference to shape a settlement in the Middle East.

The official news agency Tass said Thursday it was clear President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin had been "going round in circles" when they discussed the Palestinian problem and had failed to come any closer to a solution.

Referring to their agreement to resume stalled Palestinian autonomy talks, Tass said this was only reached because both sides wanted to avoid admitting the meeting had been a waste of time. "These talks on Palestinian autonomy, a matter to be decided by the Palestinians themselves, have been dragged out over two years. This farce cannot he assessed in any other way than as the ultimate in cynicism and hypocrisy," it added.

Tass said the only path to a settlement in the region was through an international conference at which the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) was able to take part. The Soviet Union has repeatedly proposed such a conference and suggested Moscow and Washington could act as guarantor powers for any agreement.

Total accord on Sinai, Ghazala says

CAIRO, Aug. 28 (AFP) — Egypt and Israel have reached total agreement on the last phase on the Israeli withdrawal from Sinai, Egyptian Defense Minister General Abdul Halim Abu Ghazala said in Alexandria Thursday,

Speaking after a meeting with his Israeli counterpart, Ariel Sharon, he said: "The timetable of the withdrawal will be put into effect in all its details, so that the withdrawal will be completed as expected in April 1981." He added "there are no problems."

Gen. Ghazala said airports and other military installations in Sinai would be handed over to Egypt as scheduled in the agreement, and that the Egyptian-Israeli military committee would meet Sept. 20. Sharon who was part of Begin's delegation has returned to Israel.

All parties hail OAU proposal on W. Sahara

RABAT, Aug. 28 (R) — A new plan for a ceasefire and a referendum in the disputed Western Sahara announced by an Organization of African Unity (OAU) committee Wednesday was welcomed by all parties con-

Morocco, which is administering Western Sahara, the Polisario which is fighting for the region's independence and Algeria, which has backed the Polisario against Morocco, all claimed victory after hearing of the plan. Mauritania, which formerly administered part of Western Sahara, also welcomed the

The plan has announced in Nairobi by a seven-nation OAU committee comprising representatives of Tanzania, Mali, Kenya, Sudan, Sirrea Leone, Nigeria and Guinea.

The committee said it would conduct a self-determination referendum as soon-as a ceasefire was agreed upon by the warring factions through the committee's mediation. Morocco has been war with the Polisario since 1976 and has refused to recognize or

Ex-CIA agent refutes charges against Libya

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP) — Former CIA agent Edwin Wilson says allegations that the Green Berets he recruited were used to train terrorists is "an absolute lie."

In an interview broadcast Thursday with ABC-News in Tripoli, Libya, Wilson said he recruited Green Berets, but they were used to teach "low-level army tactics." Four Ex-Green Berets he hired still are working in Libya, Wilson said. He also said explosive timers he supplied to Libya were "meant to be used harmlessly" in the training of military

A former sergeant in the special forces said Tuesday in Honolulu he and other ex-Green Berets were recruited four years ago at Fort Bragg, N.C., to go Libya. The man, retired master sergeant : Luke F. Thompson, said "first of all, I don't think this country (Libya) is training any terrorists, let alone the Green Berets training them."

He said a Swiss company, which he declined to identify, hired the ex-Green Berets "on behalf of the Libyan government to do low-level training of their military people ... Squad instruction on fire maneuver ... just advising at a very basic level."

negotiate with the fighters.

The official Moroccan press said Morocco was satisfied that the OAU committee considered Algerian and Polisario demands for a Moroccan withdrawal and direct ceasefire talks with Polisario.

The OAU committee, however, rejected King Hassan's wish to organize the referendum himself. The plan also allowed for an interim and impartial administration to be set up in Western Sahara with the help of OAU and United Nations troops, despite the king's unwillingness to accept such a move on what he regards as sovereign territory.

Algeria and the Polisario welcomed these apparent concessions in their favor. Western Saharans will be asked whether they want independence or integration with Morocco.

In Mauritania, which administered part of Western Sahara until Polisario raids forced it to abandon all claims to the territory in 1979, President Muhammad Khouna Haidallah welcomed the Nairobi resolution and urged all-round cooperation with the OAU.

Sirhan denies statement on Sen. Kennedy

NEW YORK, Ang. 28 (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan, says "may lightning strike me dead" if he ever stated he would kill Senator Edward M. Kennedy if he got out of prison.

Sirhan, in an interview at California's Soledad Prison that was broadcast by ABC News Thursday night, also said he probably would go to some Arab country if released, and has invitations from Libya, and possibly others. Sirhan is serving a life term but can seek parole in 1984. The California senate Thursday voted 35-0 to urge the board of prison terms to drop plans to parole him.

Sirhan said he blamed the political aspirations of the Los Angeles district attorney, John Van de Kamp, for the idea that Sirban had told other : ittnates he would kill the Massachusetts Senator. "I understand that Van de Kamp is in the process of running for the attorney generalship of ... California," Sirban said in the interview filmed Tuesday.

"I would be a very easy scapegoat for him to unload all his failures ... important criminal cases that he's blundered in Los Angeles." Sirhan said the charges "are totally untrue.

Zia sees flexibility in Afghan proposals

President Muhammad Zia ul-Hao Thursday said the new terms for negoniating a political solution of the Afghan crisis displayed "considerable flexibility."

Zia, speaking to reporters at a bridge dedication northwest of here, said his government had not yet received an official text of the conditions but that an Afghan broadcast report clearly reflected a change. The Kabul regime announced Monday it would be willing to hold "bilateral, trilateral or multilatcral" talks with United Nations participation. Before, it had insisted on separate negotiacons with Tehran and Islamabad.

Zia gave oo indication what likely response he would make to the Afghan terms offered. They still called for dialogue directly with the Kabul regime officials while Islamabad has been insisting on meeting only with representatives of Afghan President Babrak Karmal's ruling Khalo Party.

His reaction to the eight-point Afghan statement was in sharp contrast to that of Washington and Peking which called it a warmed-over version of one announced by Kabul May 14, 1980. The Pakistan leader also said there had been a "qualitative" change in the Soviet role in Afghanistan this week with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin, the most senior Moscow official to be invited since the 1979 Soviet intervention. Firyubin was holding talks Friday in New Delhi with Foreign Secretary R.D. Sathe.

Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, who arrived in Islamabad said Friday that the production of F-16 fighter-bombers was being speeded up to meet the demand of the U.S. armed forces and such foreign buyers as Pakistan.

But Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the only assurance she could make to the Pakistani president, known to be critical of delays, is that his country will receive the aircraft "well short" of the normal 42-month production time.

"There is a very large backlog and there is a serious depletion of our own national inventory," she explained. Pakistan was expected to receive 36 F-16s two years from the date the order is placed but Zia's regime had hoped to receive a few by the end of 1981.

Official displeasure over the 24-month wait was expressed Friday by Zia himself when he said that the delay could reinforce Pakistani sentiment that the U.S. government could not be relied upon.

Cheysson arrives

AMMAN, Aug. 28 (Agencies) - French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson arrived here Friday from Paris to begio a three-day trip to three Mideast nations. Cheysson will also travel to Syria and Lebanoo where he is expected to meet Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yassar Arafat. Cheysson will return to Paris Monday.

Earlier in Paris King Hussein and Cheysson Thursday discussed peace moves in the Middle East, including Crown Prince Fahd's peace plan for a settlement of the Mideast

The Jordanian monarch, who had dinner talks with President Francois Mitterrand Wednesday night, saw Cheysson the eve of his departure. "France considers that Jordan has a key position in the Middle East and has a vital role to play in the Palestinian quesoon," Cheysson told reporters after the meeting. "Jordan is a stable and well-managed country and for us this has considerable importance, he adde. Asked about Crown Prince Fahd's peace proposals, be said: "This plan is interesting and positive, both because of its tone and content and because Saudi Arabia is one of the leading countries of the Middle East."

Sudanese crackdown on Eritrean factions

KHARTOUM, Aug. 28 (R) — Sudanese government sources have confirmed reports of a Sudanese crackdown on volunteers fighting for the iodependence of Ethiopia's Eritrea province.

The sources said the crackdown followed fierce fighting between rival groups. They said the Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF) had driven 4,000 fighters of the Eritrean Liberation Front-Revolutiooary Command (ELF-RC) over the border from Eritrea into Sudan early this month.

The Sudanese government subsequently closed down the fighters' offices here and forced the ELF/RC execuate its men from border base where they had taken refuge, the sources said.

An ELF-RC spokesman in Damascus had accused Sudan of taking part in what he called "a total extermination war against the Eritrean people." The sources here said the crackdown was only temporary.

They said there had been skirmishes for the past three months between the EPLF and ELF-RC, the two main factions, and "this jeopardized Sudan's efforts to bring about a peaceful soludon to the Eritrean question."

BEIRUT, Aug. 28 (Agencies) — Ayatollah Khomeini's government said Friday 25 Kurdish insurgents were killed in a three-day mop-up operation mounted by revolutionary guards in Iran's northwestern province of Azerbaijan to put down a rebellion by autonomy-seeking Kurds.

A statement from the command of revolutionary guard corps said 18 Iranian soldiers and guardsmen captured by guerrillas of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party were freed in the operation that brought "all vil-lages in the rebel areas" under government control.

Meanwhile, revolutionary committees in Miandoab, northern Iran, have arrested 20 Mujahedeen Khalq leftists and members of Markist-Leninst Peykar and minority Fedayin groups, Tehran radio announced. The revolutionary court office in the western Azerbaijan town said that a large number of banned publications and books along with the equivalent of $10,000 had been seized, the radio said. At Shiraz in southern Fars province.

in Iranian operations revolutionary guards arrested five Mujahe-deen Khalq members after unearthing a hideout, Important quantities of equipment were also seized, the radio said. Another 18 in Kerman province, south Iran, it reported.

Maritime officials said in Toulon that the Iranian gunboat Tabarzin, hijacked off Gibraltor Aug. 13 and brought to this southern French seaport six days later, left early Friday for an undisclosed destination. The vessel cast off with an all-Iranian crew, and was given enough fuel to allow it to reach its destination. It was also checked thoroughly before leaving, the sources said. The French-built gunboat was one of three that left for Iran from the French port of Cherbourg Aug. 1. It was hijacked 12 days later by 22 commandos opposed to the regime of Khomeini, and eventually brought to Marseilles, southern France, for refueling. But France refused to refuel the vessel, and took it over when the bliackers requested and received permission to stay in the country.

3 Israelis held for bid to murder Britons

MARSEILLES, Aug. 28 (R) - Three Israelis have been charged with attempting to murder three Britons in a fight on a train near Marseilles Monday, police said Thursday.

Zion Sekharia, 26, David Dahan, 26, and Jacob Benchouchan, 28, all residents of Paris, were arrested Monday night after a fight, apparently about scatting arrangements on board a Paris-bound train, the police said. They were remanded in custody at a court

Libyan pilots safe

SANTA BARBARA, California, Aug. 28 (AFP) - Neither of the Libyan pilots shot down over the Mediterranean last week by U.S. jet fighters was killed, President Ronald Reagan said here Thursday. Speaking to a group of California Republicans, Reagan said: "As far as we can tell, both their pilots were picked up, and therefore there was no loss of life".

The Pentagon originally had announced that one of the two pilots had parachuted to safety and the other had apparently died in the explosion of his plane.

TESTS FOR CHEYSSON

France's Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson comes to the Middle East for the first time in his new official capacity.

Cheysson had previously declared, and on several occasions, the French Administration's wish to extend and strengthen the relations between France and the Arab world, something which the Arab world as a whole cannot but applaude.

Yet, the French government has to realize that the Arab world is monitoring its moves on the issues involving the area carefully, and that there are specifically three issues which will constitute a kind of a test for French intention in the area.

First among these is that of the nuclear research center France is to sell to Iraq in place of the Tammuz plant destroyed by the Israelis last June — Much here will depend on the conditions France will put on the sale. Normal supervision of the research center has already been accepted by the Iraqis, and France will gain a great deal of goodwill in the Arab world if it puts no obstacles on Iraq's attempt to develop its peaceful nuclear industry.

The Arab world will also be looking carefully to see whether the new French Administration will be content, like its predecessor, to ignore the Lebanese crisis, or take a more active role, perhaps in conjunction with the EEC, in seeking to Finally, and perhaps most crucially, there is the question of the relations with Israel. The first few months of the administration have seen a growing closeness between it and Israel. The Zionist lobby in France has been pushing harder and harder against the possible resumption of the efforts to strengthen the relations between France and the PLO. Efforts started in the time of the previous administration, and were on the point of yielding important results when the change over took place.

Nicaragua looks to U.S. for aid to meet crisis

By Agustin Fuentes

MANAGUA —
Two years after overthrowing a right-wing dictatorship that once thrived on United States backing, Nicaragua's leftist rulers are looking to Washington to help it out of an economic crisis.

The Reagan administration bas bracketed Nicaragua with Cuba as a major supplier of the left-wing guerrilla rebellion in El Salvador, a country Washington sees as a battleground against Soviet influence in central America. The Nicaraguan government nevertheless sees no alternative to seeking U.S. aid if it is to counter the problems that confront it in the post-revolutionary

Nicaragua's ambassador to Washington, Artur d'Cruz, acknowledged recently that relations were still tense but said his government was laying special emphasis on overcoming irritants and finding points of agreement.

Officials are optimistic of an improvement in relations with the recent visit here of U.S. assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American affairs, Thomas Enders.

Nicaragua's rulers never actively sought poor relations with Washington and indeed were willing recipients of U.S. aid. But the relationship soured at the start of this year when President Reagan's new administration made clear that the alleged interference of the Soviet Union in El Salvador, through Cuban and Nicaraguan proxies, would be a major foreign policy priority.

Aid to the Managua government was suspended on the grounds that Soviet bloc arms were being funnelled to the Salvadorean leftists through Nicaragua. The cut-off aggravated an already-precarious economic situation and the government had to turn to Soviet bloc countries to meet the shortfall.

To date, Nicaragua has received wheat supplies from the Soviet Union as well as a $50 million credit line for purchases of machinery. From outside the Soviet bloc, the Libyans have loaned $100 million technical assistance.

Low productivity is nne of several factors that coupled with the U.S. aid cut-off, combined to put a damper on the government's economic recovery plan. Officials acknowledge the drop in productivity is caused by labor indiscipline, takeovers of factories and frequent political meetings during working hnurs.

The situation could nevertheless be alleviated by re-establishing stable economic links with the United States, according to Nicaraguan officials. The U.S. aid cut-off meant suspension of $15 million assistance, the remainder of a aid package approved by Congress last year.

Washington softened the blow to some extent by waiving a requirement that Nicaragua immediately repay $40 million in loans. Officials said that the alleged arms flow to El Salvador dropped in March and April after the aid cut-off.

There are still indications, however, of barriers to putting the U.S.-Nicaragua relatinnship back on a sound footing. Enders, who may make a second visit to Managua later this year, said in a policy statement last month that Nicaraguan and Cuban arms supplies to the Salvadorean guerrillas were again on the increase. "...An ominous upswing has occurred, not to the volume reached this winter, but to levels that enable the guerrillas tn sustain military operations despite their inability to generate fresh support," he said.

Washington is also thought to be concerned at a substantial defense build-up being undertaken by the Sandinista government, including unconfirmed intelligence reports that Soviet T-55 tanks have been shipped to Nicaragua. The motive of the build-up is the Sandinistas belief that many of the former National Guard, who were loyal to the late dictator Anastasio Somoza, are planning a comeback from bases in neighboring Honduras.

To counter the threat of an invasion, which Nicaragua claims has the unofficial support of Washington, the army has been greatly expanded. Officials refuse to discuss the huild-up for security reasons but exiled Nicaraguans estimate the country now has a 50,000-strong army supported by tens of thousands of militiamen in a nation of 2.5 million paper.

Washington has declined to comment on the purpose of Enders' expected future visit to Nicaragua but the U.S. administration has clearly been trying to pressure the Sandinistas on their alleged aid to the Salvador insurgents.

Washington's view of the Sandinista government as a pro-Soviet trojan horse in central America therefore appears to threaten Managua's hopes of a more profitable relationship with the United States.

Saudi Arabian Press Review

Al Jazirah Friday gave lead coverage to a 'statement by Khalil Al-Wazir (Abu Jihad), a member of Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), who described Crown Prince Fahd's peace plan as a "positive and very significant initiative". Okaz led with Oman's declaration on the same subject, saying that the Saudi Arabian plan will achieve perfect balance in the region.

Al Jazirah frontpaged a report published by a Jordanian newspapers, saying that President Sadat of Egypt escaped another assassination attempt three days ago. The fresh meeting of the Arab Follow-Up Committee beginning Saturday formed a prominent page one story in the two newspapers.

In an editorial on Prince Fahd's plan and President Sadat's reaction. Al Jazirah said that Sadat had shown his negative initiative when recently he said in Washington that be was disappointed with Prince Fahd's plan observed that the hopes and aspirations of Sadat, since he made peace with Israel, have taken the Israeli pattern. While the whole world has become convinced that the Camp David accords have failed to realize peace in the region, Sadat and Begin still consider the accords as providing the bases for peace, it said. The paper held the confidence that Begin's recent visit to Alexanderia was not a mere coincidence, but he must have gone there to put a brake on Sadat, if be found him leaning toward the Kingdom's peace plan.

Commenting on the visit of French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson to some Arab capitals, Okaz noted that the French official's tour aims to get acquainted with the Arab views on Saudi Arabia's initiative. In this connection, the paper, referred to a French magazine's remarks that "Prince Fahd's initiative has been issued to utge Europe and peace-loving countries of the world to tell Israel that this is a specific and clear-cut Arab solution"

Japanese Communist Party defies Russia

By Yuko Hakamikado

TOKYO — With a directness rarely displayed in Japan, the retatively small Japan Communist Party (JCP) is engaging its big brother Moscow in a bitter battle of words over Soviet foreign policy.

Reasons for the polemics, conducted in letters between the parties' central committees and the media, can be traced back to 1964, and more recently to events in Afghanistan and Poland. It also follows an electoral setback for the JCP at a time when the conservative ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) has allied Japan more firmly than ever before with the United States and West

The first letter, sent by the Soviet side May 27 and made public by the JCP, sought the Japanese party's support for overtures to the West from Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, including the possible resumption of arms' limitation talks.

In a letter dated June 15, the JCP rejected the request, which also calls for confidence-huilding measures between East and West in the Far East and Europe, and for a proposed world conference of Communist parties.

The JCP, which took a firm stand against Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in December, 1979, said in the letter: "The Soviet party obviously regards itself as the vanguard or center of international Communism by seeking support of the Communist parties for its external policies. It also said support for confidence-building measures in the Far East would mean the JCP would have to make an about-face and recognize Japanese armed forces, the presence of U.S. troops in Japan and joint Japan-U.S. military exercises.

The letter, which criticized Soviet foreign policy and declared Moscow had carried out "rash intervention" in Polish party affairs, drew a sharp retreat from the Soviet party. The Soviet reply this month accused the JCP of launching offensive, harmful and absured attacks on Moscow. Attacks nn Moscow's policies could only be judged as anti-Soviet, it added

The letter, published in the Soviet central committee's journal, Public Life, claimed Japanese Communists bad tried to place most of the blame for world tension on the Soviet Union by alleging Moscow had flouted the principle of self-determination of nations by its Afghan intervention tion.

"Such an interpretation is either complete self-deception or even worse, conscious falsification", it added. In reply, the ICP said this month in an unsigned article in its daily newspaper Akahata (red flag), that the Afghan intervention was "a grave error of socialist imperialism, enough to delay by 10 years the progress of world history. "It seriously impaired Soviet socialism and inflicted a heavy blow on the world's democratic forces."

Hiroshi Tachii, the JCP's international affairs bureau chief, said in a statement that it was "superpower chauvinism to justify every Soviet action and reject any criticism against it as anti-Soviet." By adding that the JCP could not accept the Soviet argument that there was no territorial issue between Tokyo and Moscow, Tachiki touched on an issue central to Japanese thinking on the Soviet Union. He was referring to four islands off northern Japan, which are claimed by Japan but have been occupied by the Soviet Union since World War

Japan normalized relations with the Soviet Union in 1956. But the government has consistently refused to conclude a World War Two peace treaty until Moscow moves to return the islands, the nearest within sight of Japan's main northern island of Hokuaido. Relations between Japan and the Soviet Union reached a low ebb in 1978 when Moscow shortly after Japan and China signed a peace and friendship treaty, started to militarized two of the islands.

Japan's defense agency said the Soviet Umon now has ground troops, equivalent to a division, in the islands backed by helicopter gun-ships, tanks, artillery and other equipment. The JCP has strongly urged the Soviets that all the islands in the Kurile chain must be returned eventually after the scrapping of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty, which provides Japan's basic defense umbrella.

While the first Japanese letter to the Soviet Communist Party rejected Moscow's pleas for support, it did propose talks between the parties under an agreement signed by Brezhnev and JCP leader

Kenji Miyamoto in December. 1979.

The agreement, designed to end a 15-year rift between the two parties and signed only three days before some Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan, pledged strict observance of the principles of independence, and non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

The rift developed in 1964 when Moscow expressed support for Yoshio Shiga, an executive member, after his expulsion from the JCP for voting in parliament for 1963 partial nuclear test ban against the party's official stand of seeking a total ban.

After brief explosion count the representation

After brief euphoria over the rapprochement with Moscow, the JCP was embarrassed by the Afghan intervention, and in June last year, it fared badly in Japan's general election, losing 12 seats in the lower house and four in the upper house. It now holds 29 of the 511 lower house seats and 12 in the upper chamber.

The JCP, which was established in 1922 and has 2440.000 members, has also been at odds with the Chinese Communist Party since 1966, when Miyamoto rejected Mao Tse-tung's call for armed revolution and the formation of an anti-Soviet bloc. Miyamoto, 82, said last year there had been signs of improvement in relations between the two parties. But an Akahata article this month said: "while the historical reassessment of Mao bad some positive aspects, it was not thorough." — (R)

Letter to the editor

The four-decades-old Palestinian problem still remains to be solved and a solution which is the key to the peace and stability in this vital region does not seem to be near. The U.S. is expected to solve this thomy problem—through diplomacy and goodwill which it enjoys with Israel. It must pressurize Israel to quit occupied territories and accept the Palestinian autonomy and Israel will have to co-operate with U.S. as it supplies arms and economic aid to this Zionist state.

But the U.S., instead of searching a peace formula acceptable to all, is playing a game of hide-and-seek in the region. On the one hand, it condemns the Israeli air raid on the Iraqi nuclear research center and on the other, accepts it as a "pre-emptive act." It suspends the deliveries of F-14s and F-15s because of Israeli raids on the Lebanese civilians but almost immediately lifts its

All American Jews have voted for Runald Reagan and so any radical change in the U.S. policy is a rare possibility. Although Reagan is convinced that there cannot be peace in the Middle-East so long as Palestinian rights are not recognized U.S.

has made this more complicated by refusing to hold talks with PLO on the grounds that the PLO does not recognize Israel and unless and untill the PLO recognizes the Zionist state, the U.S. will not hold talks with the PLO. But the fact is that Israel does not recognize the existence of Palestine and the PLO.

If the U.S. wants to act fairly, it should bring both sides to a negotiating table. The U.S. has always sided with Israel in the past and this is the crux of the problem.

So, instead of expecting the U.S. or the USSR to solve these, we ourselves should solve our problems. I would like to remind my brothers that the key to all the problems the Islamic world is facing today is unit. Once we unite in the real sense, then U.S. and the rest will come after us seeking our help. This is not imagination but a fact which is very easy to attain provided we unite.

Your's truly.

Agency officials deny cancer therapy charges

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Nearly 100 Cancer patient 3 were exposed to large doses of radiation in Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) treatment chambers between 1960 and 1974 under a therapy program partially financed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) according to an article published recently in mother Jones Magazine. NASA wanted to know how much radiation astronauts could absorb without becoming sick, the article reported.

The magazine said that other therapy treatments could have been more effective, that patients were not fully informed about the program and that a primary purpose of the program was to obtain information for the space agency rather than to emphasize cancer therapy. The charges were strongly denied by Department of Energy officials.

NASA provided only $700,000 for the therapy, compared with $12 million from the Atomic Energy Commission, said Dr. George Bibb, director of the Research Division at the Oak Ridge, Tenn, nuclear facility, where the treatments were administered.

Oak Ridge, now operated by the Departmeot of Energy, provides enriched uranium for the nation's atomic weapons. Radiation therapy techniques were developed at Oak Ridge, which had a large supply of radioactive material. Doctors from as far as 300 miles away sent patients to the 20-bed nuclear study hospital at Oak Ridge. The hospital was closed in 1974 because of rising costs,

At least 89 patients received large doses of radiation in specially built chambers, the magazine said. "The government doctors administering the treatments knew of other therapy techniques - using either different types of radiation exposure or chemotherapy that were superior," it said. "The clinic facilities were "substandard" according to the government itself, and the AEC eventually forced its own clinic to close down," according to the article.

But Dr. Clarence L. Lushbaugh, a path-

said, "we had the best therapy there was. The patient came first."

An AEC team that visited the facilities said the radiation treatment programs were developed "without adequate planning, criticism or objectives, and have achieved less in substantial productivity than merits continued support," according to a 1974 AEC report. "There has been little thought as to therapeutic utility or potential long range side effects."

Lushbaugh said money from NASA "engaged us to additional studies in areas" in which research was needed. NASA wanted to know what level of radiation would cause sickness. "They did not want someone to vomit in a space capsule while wearing a space suit," Lushbaugh said recently.

The Mother Jones article says the cancer patients treated at Oak Ridge "really became guinea pigs for the space program."

That allegation was later denied by NASA officials, who said they were simply gathering information about persons already under radiation treatment. "We certainly did not use human beings as radiation subjects," said Dr. Stuart Nachtwey chief of the biomedical applications branch at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Doctors treating the patients and prescrib-ing radiation doses had no connection with NASA, he said. NASA "was not involved in the therapeutic aspects we just gathered any information we could," Nachtwey said.

Dr. Karl Z. Morgan, who directed the Health Physics Division at Oak Ridge during the period of the treatments, said he was misled about the treatment program, according to the article.

"I naively thought that the purpose...was to use ionizing radiation in the treatment of cancer in a manner that had been proven to offer justifiable hope for remission, and in some cases, a cure, Morgan said. "I believe I was misled, and my hope and trust in this program were badly misplaced."

DETROIT (LAT) - General Motors Corp.'s austerity program touched one of its most hallowed corporate shrines recently when the auto maker said it plans to unload or close down the unique company-owned engineering college that has turned out thousands of GM executives, including its last three presidents. GM said it is "seeking less costly and perhaps more effective ways of recruiting and training engineers" than its 62-year-old General Motors Institute nearby Flint, Mich:

For years, it was a joke at the institute that it . was the only part of the corporation that consisteotly lost money. It costs GM $16 million last year. But, until now, the company always felt that it got its money's worth.

China's flooding problem

By Michael Parks

PEKING, (LAT) — The extensive floods in southwest China's Sichuan province were due in large part to the wholesale felling of trees along the upper Yangtze: River over maoy years. destroying the natural watershed there, according to Chinese offi-cials. Tan Oilong, the Communist party first secretary in Sichuan, China's most populous province, said that the area's forests and with them the ecological balance - had been virtually destroyed.

"This painful lesson should be used to educate our people for generations to come," Oilong said.
The floods killed 768 persons, according to official reports, and left more than 1.5 million homeless. Vast areas, including whole countries, were inundated as the Yangtze and its tributaries overflowed their banks after heavy rains in late July and August.

The destruction of the mountainside forests meant the loss of the natural protective . barrier - the roots that hold the topsoil and foliage that shields it - against such flooding. Oilong said. He blamed past agricultural policies that emphasized the developmeet of all available land, including the terracing of hills, to increase grain production.

Zhen Lu, deputy director of China's Forestry Institute, also attributed the destruction of the forests to the emphasis on grain production under former Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung. Mao declared grain to be the "key link" for China's development and urged the whole country to emulate the rural brigade in northern China that had terraced its hills to the top and boosted its harvest.

For the past four years, the Chinese leadership has been trying to reverse that trend with a massive reforestation program and strict regulations

Salvador rocked by blasts Battles reported

in three towns

SAN SALVADOR, Aug. 28 (AP) — A dozen explosions rocked the Capital Thursday night, wrecking a number of electric power installations. A police spokesman said one person was killed by the blast and at least five were injured.

Earlier in the day, the army rushed troops and artillery northeast of the capital to dislodge leftists from three small towns. Police reported finding the bodies of 21 more persons killed, victims of the leftist, rightist viol-

The bomb blasts plunged several sections of the city into darkness for moments, while it caused brownouts in others. The first explosions went off shortly after 9 p.m. EST (0100 GMT) and 11 more followed in intervals of 10 to 15 minutes.

A police spokesman blamed the explosions on leftists, as part of a campaign to wreck the country's economy. More than 50 lamp posts have been destroyed by guerrilla plastic bombs this week in the capital alone. In leaflets to news media, the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a federation of five of the country's six leftist groups, said the lamp-post explosion is part of its strategy to overthrow the U.S.-backed ruling junta.

Heavy fighting was reported in an area around the towns of Palo Grande, El Roble and Aguacayo, a military spokesman said.

The spokesman, who requested anonymity for security reasons, said the towns are located approximately 32 kms northeast of the capital. Suchitoto, the biggest city in the area, was cut off in the early morning after leftists blew up a bridge oo a road leading to it.

Earlier, leftist bands reportedly damaged the city's water and electrical systems.

The military spokesman said the reinforcements sent to the area were backed by artillery and had air support, but he declined to give details. However, witnesses reported seeing "a large number" of troops from the Atlacat anti-guerrilla army batallion moving in trucks toward the three towns.

In other action Thursday a squad of about 50 guerrillas dressed in olive-green military fatigues attacked a oumber of villages in Usulutan province and assasinated several peasants, another military source said.

Meanwhile, army patrols contioued to sweep mountain areas in northero Chalatenango province, ocar the Honduran border, searching for guerrilla hideouts, the sources said.

Competition from Murdoch

U.S. daily ends publication

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP) — The final issue of The Daily News Tonight hit the stands Friday, one year after the News began its afternooo edition as a challenge to Rupert Murdoch's New York Post.

Rupert Murdoch's New York Post.

The Daily News, which sells 1.3 million copies of its morning editioo each day, still has the largest circulation of any single-city daily oewspaper in the country. But the paper had a 2 millioo circulation a decade ago before Murdoch, an Australian publishing magnate, bought the Post and began boosting its circulation with emphasis nn burnan interest and personality stories.

buman interest and personality stories.

Competing with The New York Times in the morning market, the News decided to challenge the Post in the afternoon. The Post quickly announced a morning edition.

"we went out to produce the liveliest, most interesting editorial package we could,

and ... it didn't work. The market isn't there," Daily News publisher Robert M. Hunt said at a receot news conference announcing the edition's end.

Partly as a result of the afternoon edition's failure, The Daily News faces an $11 million deficit this year, despite belt-tightening measures. These included a pay freeze for some employees, an end to executive bonus and a 10 percent cut in salary for some executives. Some 320 Tonight employees are losing their jobs.

The Tonight edition never reached its 200,000 circulation goal. It sold 70,000 copies a day at the end. The Post has an average daily circulation of 688,000 with its morning and afternoon editions. The circulation of The Wall Street Journal, which has a nationwide readership, is larger than that of the News.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AFP) — Goats should join men oo long-term space missions in the future, the American magazine Science has reported in its latest edition.

A computer study cooducted by a Cornell University (Ithaca, New York) chemist, Michael Schuler, concluded that goats, having the ability to chew, rechew, and digest heavy plant lefe, could get rid of vegetable wastes efficiently.

In a spacecraft carrying 24 men on a teo-year journey, equipped to grow edible vegetables without soil, the goats would eat the inedible roots and stems, the chemist wrote. Moreover, the goats could provide the astronauts with fresh milk,

Jacques Bidalou, a judge in the northeastern town of Hayange, was removed for abuse of power on July 16, 1980 by Alain Peyrefitte, justice minister in the cabinet of former Presideot Valery Giscard d'Estaing. Peyrefitte accused Judge Bidalou of "insols-ence" and "lacking reserve."

Opponents of the removal called the decision political, and cited Bidalou's order that seven immigrant workers be allowed to return to their boarding bouses, although they had held rent strikes. That decision was later overturned by an appeal court.

Judge Bidalou, who called himself a "judge who does not dance to the whistler's tune."
once called former Prime Minister Raymond Barre to testify in the case of an unemployed worker who had written bad checks.

He also released a union member who had painted wall slogans benouncing bosses, citing an economic crisis in the eastern province of Lorraine. Last December, Judge Bidalou wrote to Giscard d'Estaing, whom he called "the guarantor of judicial authority," to demand that he "put an end to the odious and ridiculous interference into the judiciary by the executive branch."

New U.K. law causes controversy

LONDON, Aug. 28 (AP) — A new contempt-of-court law weot into effect Thursday in Britain, making it illegal for jurors to disclose bow they reached a verdict and giving judges broader powers to limit reporting.

Supporters of the law say it liberalizes Britain's cootempt statute, but critics claim it erodes the right to publish the truth. The most controversial feature of the 1981 Contempt of Court Act is a provisioo — tacked ooto the original bill as a last-minute amendment—clamping down oo jury room disclosures.

Under the law, it is illegal for anyone to "obtain, disclose or solicit" information about anything that happens during secret jury deliberations. Reporters and researchers are banned from asking jurors questions about their deliberations, and jurors can be held in contempt for telling them.

Technically, the law makes it a criminal act for jurors to chat with frieods or family about what happened in the jury room. But the attorney general must approve any attempt to bring contempt proceedings, making it unlikely a juror would be prosecuted for such a breach.

Dutch reject deployment of neutron

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 28 (AP) — Dutch Foreign Minister Christoph van der Klaauw assured parliament Thursday that the Dutch government will oppose any deployment of the neutron warhead in the Netherlands.

Van der Klaauw said that although production of the neutron warheads was an internal U.S. matter, the Dutch government regretted that NATO allies were not informed of the decision until after it was made. However, Van der Klaauw refused to say the neutron bomb should never be deployed in Holland, addies "Verschould never was never."

adding, "You should never say never."
In Peking, the official Xinhua news agency said Friday Moscow is raising the possibility of a Soviet neutron bomb in an effort to fuel existing discord between the United States and Western Europe.

"In the eyes of Moscow, the blackmail would be worthwhile if it succeeds in widening the differences between Washington and some of its NATO allies, even though there is no hope of forcing the Reagan administration to rescind its decision," Xinhua said.

The Chinese agency said the Soviet Union's concern is not European security or the fate of mankind but its own military

New York cop saves man trying to end life

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP) — A man tried to commit suicide Thursday, but a quick-witted policeman snatched him after he jumped from a 12th-floor window, police said. Police officer Joe McConville said the man, Daniel Leventritt, 23, was taken to a hospital for observation after the incident.

McConville said police went to a building on West 70th Street oo Manhattan's west side after receiving a report that a man was standing oear a window up to the hallway and tried to talk Leventritt into backing away from the widow, and emergency service personnel were called in. But before they could arrive, Leventritt jumped.

Police officer Michael Maurer, 34, leaned out the window and grabbed the: man by the wrists as he fell. Maurer managed to hold Leventritt while hanging out the window until emergency services arrived and pulled both men to safety, McConville said.

W. Germany may free spy

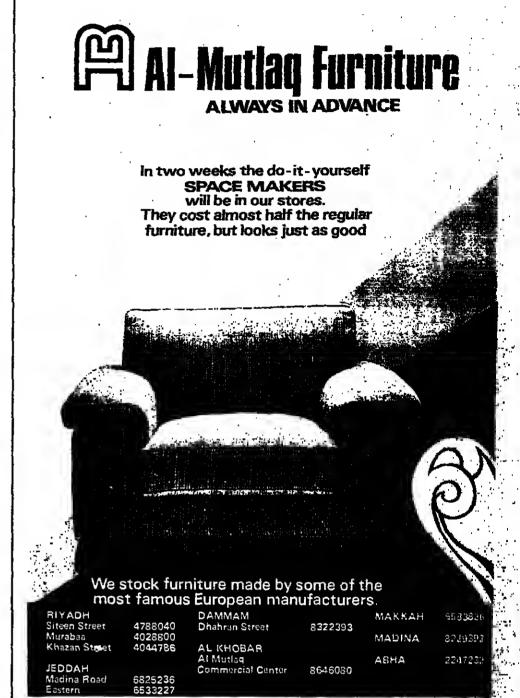

BONN, Aug. 28 (AFP) — West German authorities are expected imminently to release convicted spy Guenter Guillaume, the discovery of whose activities in 1974 led to the forced resignation of Chancellor Willy Brandt, according to Friday's issue of the newspaper Bild Zeitung. Government officials have held several meetings recently on the subject, the newspaper claimed. The West German government called the report "speculative."

Gillaume and his wife, Christe, were sentenced in 1975 to 13 years in prison for spying for East Germany. Guillaume had been a personal assistant to Brandt, taking care of his travel arrangements and appointments.

Mrs. Guillaume was expelled from West Germany in March of this year. She lives in East Berlin with the couple's son. The Boan government has said repeatedly that it would

Malaysia denies Aquino visit

KUALA LUMPUR, Aug. 28 (Agencies)

- The Foreign Ministry here has so far failed to find evidence of a reported visit to Malaysia earlier this month by exiled Filipino opposition leader Bedigno Aquino, an official said Friday.

Aquino, given political asylum in the United States after being freed from nearly eight years of detention to enable him to undergo heart surgery in Texas last year, was reported to have told a U.S. news agency in New York Monday he had just returned from a ten-day trip to Malaysia and Singapore, South Korea and Hong Kong.

Such a visit could embarrass Malaysia, as the thorny issue of the Moro fighters in the southern Philippines has always struck a sour note in relations between Malaysia and the

However, he did not elaborate beyond saying that he would be acting on behalf of "national democratic forces" in the Philippines. Sison hastened to add he was talking "theoretically" since there had been no offer from Marcos, and the president to date had not even offered him anmesty.

According to the Foreign Ministry official, quoted by the Star newspaper, Aquino was supposed to have slipped into Malaysia and met a few Muslim groups somewhere in the east Malaysian state of Sabah. "We still do not know how he could have entered Malaysia," the official added.

Both Foreign Ministry and immigration officials have said they would have known had Aquino visited Malaysia, as they would have been consulted before any entry permit was issued. Foreign Ministry officials were particularly concerned because any sign of Malaysia "allowing someone like Aquino" to make contact with Filipino Muslims or any other group could be misconstructed as opposing the Filipino regime of President Fer-dinand Marcos, reliable sources said.

Meanwhile, a staff member of a Chinese language newspaper went on trial here Friday for illegal possession of ammunition, hand grenades and subversive (Communist) documents. He faces the death penalty if convicted.

Liew Sum Seong, 38, a sub-editor of the China Press, is charged under Malaysia's Internal Security Act with possession of 13 rounds of 6.35mm ammunition, five hand grenades and three homemade bombs at a house here on Dec. 28, 1977. In 1975 Malaysia introduced legislation which required a mandatory death sentence for anyone convicted of illegal possession of firearms, ammunition and explosives if charged under the Internal Security Act. The law was aimed at curbing increased Communist guerrilla activities and armed robberies.

Liew is the first journalist to be charged under the act. Since 1975 more than two dozen have been executed by hanging, and an equal number also convicted under the act are on death row.

Police inspector Wong Kim Meng, who is now attached to the regional border committee office in Songkhla, south Thailand, told

India to operate atomic plant

NEW DELHI. Aug. 28 (AFP) - India has taken the necessary steps to ensure the continued operation of its Tarapur atomic plant following the abrogation of a 1963 uranium supply agreement with the United States, Foreign Minister Narasimha Rao told parliament Friday.

In a written reply in the upper house. Rao said the U.S. government had once again told India this week that it was not in a position to continue the nuclear supply relationship with India.

He said the government had now made it clear to the United States that India would consider all obligations arising out of the 1963 agreement no longer binding should the contractual supply relationship be terminated. Under the 1963 agreement, the United States was to supply nuclear fuel to the Tarapur project near Bombay for 30 years. India has the indigenous know-how and

Chefs gather | Sri Lankans defer call in Budapest | for separate Tamil state for separate Tamil state

COLOMBO, Aug. 28 (AFP) - Substantial progress was made Thursday night in talks between the government and the opposition Tamil United Liberation Front (TULF) toward solving the minority Tamil problem. which erupted in riots earlier this month, the state-run Daily News said Friday.

Quoting authoritative political sources, the newspaper said that the meeting would reconvene on Monday "when there is a strong possibility of agreement heing reached".

The report said the talks centered on a possible "moratorium" on the call for a separate state by the Tamils. This would mean that neither the TULF nor the government would raise the thorny subject of secession for an agreed period of six months, the newspaper said.

The key to the whole problem may lie in getting the recently constituted development councils working properly, the Daily News said. The development councils are expected to provide a certain measure of autonomy in provincial administration. It is hoped this will satisfy the Tamils who want a greater say in activities in the northern and eastern provinces where they outweigh the Sunhalese national majority.

Thursday's discussions, initiated by President J.R. Javewardene, were attended by TULF leader Appapillai Amirthalingam and two other TULF members of parliament. Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa and six other ministers flanked Javewardene at the talks. Two community relations specialists, one a constitutional expert and the other one of the architects of the development councils, were also present.

The first meeting in this round of talks was held last week in the wake of a wave of rioting in which Tamil shops were set on fire and looted. The government claims that various groups took advantage of the tension bet-

Border slams unbeaten century

Alan Border, a sparkling ton

LONDON, Aug. 28 (AP) — Alan Border, left-handed batsman, hit a superb 106 not out Friday as the Australians were all out for 352 in the final cricket Test match against England at the Oval.

It was a formidable total for England, who had won the toss Thursday and sent Australia

The Australians reached 251 for four on the first day. By the lunch interval Friday they had progressed slowly to 318 for seven, and after 45 minutes of play in the afternoon they

Ian Botham, the hero of England's three wins in the series, finished with six wickets for 125. Bob Willis had four wickets for 91. England has already made sure of winning the series with three victories against Australia's one, and one game drawn. When Willis bowled Dennis Lillee, he became the highest England wicket-taker against Australia with 110 wickets, overtaking Wilfred Rhodes' long-standing record.

And Botham revealed what a tough, talented cricketer he is by bowling unchanged innings in extreme heat.

Border did not play spectacular cricket Friday, but he held the Australian side together as the nther batsmen got out. The left-hander added only 27 runs in the two hours of morning play and was on 79 at lunch.

When the ninth wicket fell Border's score was 80. With Hike 'Whitney as his last partner, Border farmed the bowling, hitting as best as he could and stealing singles off the last ball of the over to get to other end.

One of these singles took him to his cen-tury. He had batted 277 minutes and hit 13

Botham took three wickets on the first day and three more Friday. He also took a remarkable catch to dismiss wicket-keeper Rodney Marsh, who edged a ball from Bob Willis into the slips. Chris Tavare dropped the ball, but Botham darted forward and held it before it reached the ground.

Attacking soccer on the cards in English League

LONDON, Aug. 28 (AP) - One of the most crucial English League soccer season for decades kicks off Saturday with many guestions needing to be answered.

The introduction of three points for a win instead of two, the first significant change in he laws for over 60 years, has been adopted in a bid to encourage attacking soccer. There a fear, however, that clubs will sit nn a 1-0 lead to preserve a victory at all costs.

Manchester United manager Ron Atkinson feels the change will have the desired effect. "I feel teams will be even more conscious of the need to win this season," said Atkinson. "under the new points system an away draw is no longer a particularly good result.

Clubs are under mounting financial pressure as transfer fees continue to spiral ever upwards and financial pressure also increases pressure on players and managers.

Coventry chairman Jimmy Hill has warned: "The lust for success by managers and chairman at a few clubs is going to put players into a pressure cooker which will explode against the interests of the game. The disciplinary record this season will be a disas-

"If hooliganism, which has forced many law abiding spectators to abandon watching live soccer, continues to prevail, and no further steps have been taken against the problem, gates could drop again."

English clubs are hoping for a resurgence of interest if the national team reaches the World Cup finals in Spain, but even that is in

What the English game needs is for more clubs to adopt an attacking attitude. Although Liverpool and Ipswich both scored European triumphs last season Liverpool, in particular, were criticized for having a too defensive attitude.

Atkinson believes the new points system will further boost the entertainment value of domestic matches. You ignore the reater incentive of three points for a win at your peril. I believe we will see more adventurous, more entertaining soccer as a result," he said. Manchester United is involved in the most interesting fixture on the opening day of the league season, against Coventry. The match gives New Coventry manager Dave Sexton a crack at the chib that sacked him after eight successive wins at the end of last season.

Sexton gambles on teenage striker Steve Whitton against United. The Manager said: "I have not seen a player strike the ball barder than Steve. He has the makings of a good player and deserves his place."

Manchester United, who will field expensive new signings Frank Stapleton and John Gidman, will, however, be without midfielder Kevin Moran, who has a broken nose. Manchester City manager John Bond, thwarted in his attempts to strengthen his team during the close season, this week failed to land Trevor Francis from Nottingham for-

Defending champions Aston Villa begin the season with a home fixture against newly-promoted Notts County but cannot find a place for 300,000 pound signing Andy Blair, County field 600,000 pound newcomer John Chiedozie.

Wolverhampton will include new signings Joe Gallagher (from Birmingham) and Alac Birch (from Chesterfield) against Liverpool. Swansea celebrate promotion to Division One after 61 years of trying with a home fixture against Leeds United. Swansea's attack will include former Leeds player Alan Curtis, while Leeds parade England winger West Ham, the third promoted club, enter-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (R) — The U.S. trade deficit declined last month by more than 8 percent as oil imports fell to their lowest level since the 1973-74 oil embargo.

the government has reported.
U.S. imports in July exceeded exports hy $1.46 billion compared with a $3.12 billion deficit in June, according to the commerce department's montly report on trade.

Oil imports fell to 5.1 million barrels a day during July, down from 6.5 million barrels in June and the towest tevel since the commerce department began keeping records in 1974. department economist David Lund said.

He said the dip in oil imports was a continuation of a trend which has seen imports fall from 6.7 million barrels a day in the first three months of the year to 6.1 million barrels in the next three-month period. Lund attributed the downward trend to a combination of high U.S. inventories, reduced consumption and high prices.

He noted, however, that prices had softened in recent months. The average price of a barrel of imported oit fell to $35.36 in July VEYNES, French Alps, Aug. 28 (AFP) - This small township of 3.4180 people perched 800 meters (2.500 feet) up in the French Alps has more than 150 solar installations and seems to he heading for autonomy in the realm of energy.

The council's swimming pool is solar powered, and the equipment is expected to pay for itself in three years. A grower has fitted his nursery with 100 square meter (yards) of panels, to form a system working in conjunction with a boiler fed on sawdust from a local timber mill.

A doctor has an old house whose veranda has been converted into a sort of greenhouse that heats the house via a heat pump with the ald of solar panels.

A so-called "blp-climatic" house halfburied in a hillside is nearing completion. Elsewhere in Veynes, solar panels are providing hot water for a hotel, camping sites and homes.

Equipment for these systems made by a local firm called S. F.A. which sells solar panels throughout France. It also prixduces solar heat pumps and is developing other associated units.

At a recent "international solar film festival", French environment ministry officials showed interest in the idea of setting up a solar power training center at Veynes. The big credit Agricole Bank has selected the Alps region for a trial financing system for projects involving the use of tavorable July figures, the department still expects the trade deficit for all of 1981 to exceed last year's deficit of $36.4 billion by several billion dollars, he said. Lund said the rise in the value of the dollar, which appreciated about 21 percent between October of last year and mid-August, had tended to reduce U.S. exports and increase imports. A stronger dollar raises the price of U.S. goods and makes them less attractive to foreign purchasers, while imported goods become more attractive to U.S. consumers because their cost declines. U.S. imports fell 9.9 percent to $20.7 billion during July, with oil accounting for almost all of the decline. Exports fell three percent to $19.3 billion. mainly because of a drop in aircraft sales, the department said.

Among the biggest trade categories, the report said agricultural commodities showed a big surplus of $1.8 billion for the month, while petroleum and related products had a $5.3 billion deficit and manufactured goods showed a $1.2 billion surplus.

Fruit exports

Medfly sours U.S.-Japan ties

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AFP) — The medily (Mediterranean fly), a small but devastating insect, is on the way to taking the place of Japanese cars today in the trade war betwen Japan and the United States.

Californian fruits and vegetables growers even fear that the fly — whose larvae devour fruits from the inside — will lead to guarantining of their produce throughout the world.

Japan was the first country to ban all imports of more than 200 kinds of Californian fruits and vegetables. This decision has naturally led to accusations of disguised protectionism against Tokyo.

'tt is a classic case on a Japanese nontariff barrier." an American exporter declared.

The economic stake is large enough or U.S. officials responsible for agriculture would not try to make the Japanese change their minds. Experts from the two countries keep on meeting one and other, but the fact that medflies have been found from north to south of California has not helped matters.

California is the orchard of the United States. It produces each year almost $500 million worth of fruits out of a total agricultural crop worth $1,787 million, Local officials said the farmers stood to lose about $1,500 million this year. U.S. agriculture experts accuse the Japanese of bad intentions in banning imports of Californian produce and in support of which they assert that lemons, for example, cannot act as carries for the insect because they are too acid. Lemons form a large part of the $80 million worth of fruits and vegetables which Japan

The Japanese retort that the Americans - very strict when dealing with products from other countries - have not reacted very vigorously to the presence of the fly on their territory.

Meanwhile. Deputy Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Ford said the U.S. has agreed to provide certificates to all private Japanese importers who requested proof that California fruit grown outside the infected areas was free from the pest. He emphasized that the department of agriculture will issue the certificates oo a voluntary basis, and that non-California fruit would not be affected.

Ford, speaking to reporters, also said a Japanese team of experts will go to Hawaii in about 10 days to review scientific data on host fruits of the medfly. The team will go on to California to inspect U.S. efforts to eradicate the pest. The Japanese do not accept some biological data we have provided and are not convinced we are winning the war against the medfly. We feel they are wrong oo both points." Ford said.

A central point of dispute is lemons. which the United States conteods is not a medfly host fruit, while the Japanese insist this is oot clear. "We will continue to press the Japanese to accept our data and take a more reasonable attitude toward our eradication program," Ford said, "We accept Japao's biological evidence on their fruit exports and we expect them to do the same on ours. We are not going to let this issue rest. It sets a precedent for our export program worldwide.

Pressure to cut oil prices up BPD, but denied press reports that output

BAHRAIN, Aug. 28 (R) - Gulf OPEC oil exporters, other than Saudi Arahia. are under growing pressure to follow Nigeria and cut prices, but each is waiting for someone else to move first, Gulf analysts said Friday.

A cut by either the United Arab Emirates (UAE) or Iraq could trigger a round of price reductions by others, they forecast, Pressure has increased following Nigeria, hardest hit by the glut among the 13 OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) members, announced a price reduction Wednesday.

Libys and Algeria, which also charge $40, have begun trying barter crude oil deals, which London analysts say offer scope for hidden discounts.

The smaller Gulf countries also face problems as their crudes, which are aligned on base prices of $35 a barrel face competition with a flood of Saudi Arabian oll at $32 a barrel, OPEC's cheapest.

GENEVA, Aug. 28 (AP) - Chief U.S. sea law negotiator James L. Vialone said I hursday that the U.S. administration would know by late this year whether it intends to quit deadlocked talks on the nearly complete tresty governing man's use of the oceans.

vialone, speaking to reporters a day before the end of a four-week session of the U.N. conference on the law of the sea, said; " the final decision has yet to be taken" about whether the United States would remain in the talks, conducted twice-yearly since 1974.

Delegates have scheduled what they said will be a "final" bargaining round in New York from March 8 to April 30. Freatysigning is forecast in September 1982, in Caracas, where negotiations began in 1973.

Negotiarions have been stalled since the U.S. administration in March ordered the treaty draft reviewed. The principal American objections concern the proposed international seabed mining regime, which represents the longest and most intricate part of the 180-page draft treaty.

Maione said the administration's review of the treaty draft will be complete by November or December, and that a 'range of options' about the U.S. position will then be put to President Ronald Reagan. Atthough

Other leading Industrials added between 2p and 10p, as in ICI, Unliever and Guest Keen. Golds held steady after gaining up to 250 cents with the firmer bullion price.

Government bonds closed with gains of up to 1/2 point in medium and long maturities. Deslers said trade was slow ahead of the long weekend, and prices were marked up in response to lack of seiling pressure at current British Aerospace and Hawker Siddeley added a further 5p and 10p respectively following the recent large Harrier jet order. Letraset ended 20p higher at 140p following results and news of a possible offer from Swedish company Esselte Ab. Banks added to 5p, while olis were quietly firm.

Gold prices were sharply higher.

Gold traded early in London and Zurich at $423.50 a troy ounce, $12.50 up in London from Thursday's close and a dollar rise in Zurieh, Gold continued rising in later mading, and London's five main bullion houses set the mid-morning "fixing" at$425.50 in an active market. Dealers cited no specific factors behind the rise.

"We've just taken it over from New York" which closed very strong last night," said one London dealer. "It's nothing new we've done

Gold closed in Hong Kong at $425.23 at ounce, up $8.92.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before It begins in Europe, the dollar dropped slightly to close at 23it.65 yen, compared with 231.40 yen Thursday. But the dollar finished the week 1.70 yen higher than last Friday.

"We must operate within our circumstances. If there is a substantial increase, this would only result in resentment by our people", Watanabe said.

He told Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan audience that his personal objective was to "educate Japan's taxpayers to the need" for greater defense spending, and at the same time make steady increases in outlays, particularly for modern equipment and

Bonn saves on NATO exercises

BONN, Aug. 28 (AFP) - West Germany will reduce its level of participation in upcoming North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) maneuvers in order to help reduce a 200 million-mark ($80 million) deficit in its army budget, a Defense Ministry spokesman said Friday.

The maneuvers, called Autumn Forge, are set to begin on Sept. 14. The cut in West German participation would save the Bundeswehr, or West German Army, about 10 million marks, the spokesman

The Defense Ministry plans to cut 20 million marks off planned end-of-year Bundeswehr expenditures of 180 million marks, he added.

Defense officials want to eliminate seven brigades from the exercises, and will slash the size of the Sharfe Klinge (sharp blade) operation, which was to use 50,000 men from the Bundeswehr's 2nd Army between Sept. 14 and 18, the spokesman

He noted that the Defense Agency Thursday set its fiscal 1982 budget appropriations request at 2,580 billion yen (about 11.2 billion). In response to the U.S. overtures, the Air Force will get an increase of 13.6 percent over 1981, the Navy 13.6 percent and the Army 2.4 percent.

Watanabe said that although the proposed expenditures represent a 7.5 percent increase budget hike of 7.6 percent — the figures rep-

He said the 1981 budget does not include something closer to nine percent.

Noting that the overall 1981 budget was an increase of only 4.3 percent, be said the 7.6 represented a relatively large one, and significant since the government aimed at zero growth in expenditures for 1982.

The zero growth budget could be effected vithout weakening the ven or Japan's competitive trade position, he said, barring a sharp rise in oil prices. The drastic paring of government spending is being carried out, he said, because "Japan's fiscal situation is the worst in the world." He blamed this on expansion of services over the yars without raising taxes to pay for them.

Tourists to Romania cautioned

BONN, Aug. 28 (AP) - The West German Health Ministry Friday warned tourists bound for Romania's Black Sea coast to exercise caution following an outbreak of diarrhea and other intestinal disorders there.

A ministry spokesman told reporters that some 1,400 persons, many of them foreign tourists, had been stricken with intestinal diseases along the Romanian coast last month. "The Romanian authorities have begun hygiene measures and the Black Sea coast is once again open for tourist traffic," the

Bonn protests eviction of S. African squatters

BONN, Aug. 28 (AP) - The West German government Friday expressed its concern over actions by South African police in breaking up an illegal settlement of squatters near Cape town.

A Foreign Office spokesman told reporters the government condemned the policy of apartheid, or racial separation, which had led to "mass arrests, separation of families and the departure of hundreds of people to economically depressed homelands.

Voyager camera repair takes days

PASADENA, California, Aug. 28 (AP)

-- As scientists reveled Friday in the dazzling complexity of Saturn's shining sheets of rings, storming clouds and battered moons, flight engineers said they'll need several days to heal their wounded spaceship.
"We're lonking at days, at least," said project manager Esker Davis of his team's efforts to repair - from a billion miles away - the crucial camera-aiming platform. It somehow was knocked out of service as Vovager 2 sailed behind Saturn Tuesday night after taking humanity's best-ever look at the distant world.

But the news, Davis said is still "a little upbeat and positive." since the troublesome platform no longer is jammed. However, he said, its jerky and unreliable movements mean "We are not yet at the place where we can say we are fixing the problem...There's a lot of work to do yet."

Voyager was leaving the planet far behind as it raced still deeper into the solar system on a journey of 1.7 billion miles (2.7 billion kms) to Uranus. Chief scientist Ed Stone said repairs were being done with special care since "we do not want to take any risks

Engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were trying Friday to unlimber the platform with high-torque maneuvers that slowly swivel it short distances back and forth through the "sticky point". Davis said that's about like putting a car in low gear and rocking it forward and back to get unstuck from a mud-hole.

Though the cameras and three other instruments are seeing none of their post-Saturn targets, scientists already have proclaimed the mission a resounding triumph. Stone said 'be repeatedly has been asked

In one early finding, one of Saturn's three major rings, so spectacularly brilliant they were seen by Galileo through a primitive telescope nearly 400 years ago, was determined to be less than 150-meter thick.

Most marveled at the sights, scientist Fred Scarf said, "we also get to hear (the sounds of Saturn), something that would be completely inaccessible if we hadn't been there." At about the time the trouble with the camera platform began, a tape recording was picked up by the ship's whip antennas as Voyager drove through a sparse outer

He said tiny bits of dust may have been bombarding the ship and hining the antenna.

Photography team leader Brad Smith showed first-ever pictures of seven tiny moons - little more than misshapen and "badly battered" boulders of ice or rock from 10 to 200 miles (16-321-km) across.

John Hinckley pleads innocent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP) - John W. Hinckley Jr. pleaded innocent Friday to charges of shooting President Ronald Reagan and three others and was pronounced competent to stand trial.

In a finn voice, Hinckley responded "not guilty" after the 13-count indictment was read to him as he stood, sometimes straight, sometimes crossing one leg over the other, before U.S. District Judge Barrington D.

Five of the 13 charges in connection with the March 30 shooting carry a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Spain deaths not due to pneumonia. expert says

COPENHAGEN. Aug. 28 (AFP) — A European health official has rejected pneumonia as the disease that killed 102 persons in the adulterated cooking oil scandal in Spain, and confirmed that the illness can only be contracted after consuming the oil.

Agence France Presse has learned. The disease struck 12,000 other persons.

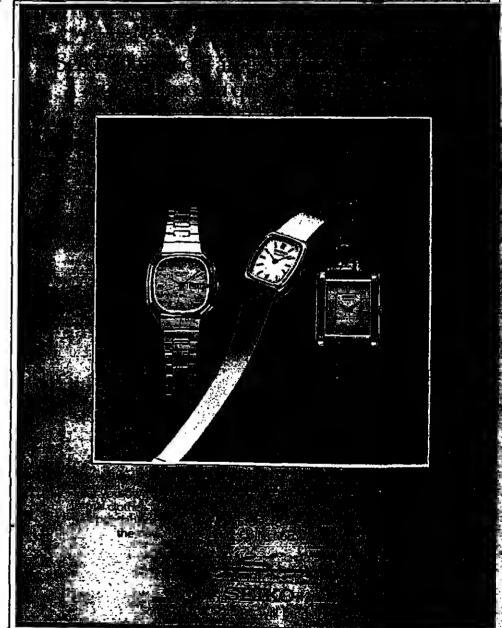

Dr. Roy Goulding, president of the Euro-pean Association of Poison Centers in Brussels who also heads the London Toxicology Center, published the conclusions in a report to the European Center of the World Health Organization here this week.

The study, which is to be handed over to the Spanish government, is still confidential. But a WHO spokesman outlined the major points for AFP. In the 11-page document, Goulding said the illness, which has become known as atypical pneumonia, was defintely not a lung virus.

Since it first broke out three months ago, the poisoning epidemic, which authorities said was the worst in Spain's history, has confounded health officials who have battled. furiously to find a medical remedy. In his report. Goulding praised them for what he called the quick response to try to control the illness, which has struck primarily people from 20 to 40 years old.

According to the last official toll 102 persons have died from the poisoning. Some 957 persons still remain bospitalized. When the disease reached its height in June, 200 to 230 cases'were reported each day.

International contacts were made to try to find a cure for the illness, which passes through several stages including severe muscular pain, particularly in the hands.
